HOFFMAN MINT'S 2001 WILDLIFE CALENDAR MEDAL

LATEST IN HOFFMAN MINT'S SERIES OF COLLECTIBLE
CALENDAR MEDALS COMMEMORATING ANIMALS OF NORTH AMERICA.

The Elk or Wapiti have become a symbol for strength and endurance. Elk presently inhabit mountainous regions as they were forced from the plains by human development. An elk can weigh as much as 1000 pounds and stand as high as six feet at the shoulder. The Bull Elk has antlers which can weigh nearly 40 pounds and grow to a span of more than four feet. The herd, which love to graze, is led by a female elk. Females also act as security and will bark to alert the herd if the scent of danger is detected.

This solid bronze medal depicts a majestic bull elk grazing in a forested valley.

"Elk"

The medal comes with a presentation box & solid walnut display stand.
